

CONTENTS

List of illustrations	xv
Preface	xxiv
Acknowledgments	xxix

PART 1 OVERVIEW 1

1 The origins of genocide 3

Genocide in prehistory, antiquity, and early modernity	3
The Vendée uprising	10
Zulu genocide	12
Naming genocide: Raphael Lemkin	13
Defining genocide: the UN Convention	18
Bounding genocide: comparative genocide studies	23
Discussion	29
What is destroyed in genocide?	39
Multiple and overlapping identities	45
Dynamism and contingency	48
The question of genocidal intent	49
Contested cases of genocide	50
Atlantic slavery – and after	50
Area bombing and nuclear warfare	54
The Biafra War	56
UN sanctions against Iraq	58
9/11: terrorism as genocide?	59
Structural and institutional violence	60
Is genocide ever justified?	62
Further study	65
Notes	67

2 State and empire; war and revolution 84

The state, imperialism, and genocide	86
Imperial famines	87
The Congo “rubber terror”	90

The Japanese in East and Southeast Asia	92
The United States in Indochina	94
The Soviets in Afghanistan	97
Imperial ascent and dissolution	101
Genocide and war	107
The First World War and the dawn of industrial death	112
The Second World War and the “barbarization of warfare”	114
Genocide and social revolution	116
The nuclear revolution and “omnicide”	118
Further study	120
Notes	122
PART 2 CASE STUDIES	133
3 Genocides of indigenous peoples	135
Introduction	135
Colonialism and the discourse of extinction	136
The conquest of the Americas	137
Spanish America	138
The United States and Canada	140
Other genocidal strategies	144
Australia’s Aborigines and the Namibian Hereros	145
Genocide in Australia	145
The Herero genocide	148
Denying genocide, celebrating genocide	151
Complexities and caveats	152
Indigenous revival	155
Further study	157
Notes	159
4 The Ottoman destruction of Christian minorities	176
Introduction	176
Origins of the genocide	178
War, deportation, and massacre	180
The Armenian genocide	181
The Assyrian genocide	189
The Anatolian and Pontian Greek genocide	199
Aftermath: attempts at justice	200
Turkey: denial . . . and growing recognition	202
Further study	207
Notes	209
5 Stalin and Mao	222
The Soviet Union and Stalinism	223
1917: the Bolsheviks seize power	223
Collectivization and famine	226

The Gulag	230
The Great Purge of 1937–1938	233
The war years	234
The destruction of national minorities	238
China and Maoism	245
Stalin, Mao, and Genocide	253
Further study	254
Stalin and Stalinism	254
Mao's China	256
Notes	256
6 The Jewish Holocaust	275
Introduction	275
Origins	276
“Ordinary Germans” and the Nazis	280
The turn to mass murder	281
Debating the Holocaust	294
Intentionalists vs. functionalists	295
Jewish resistance	295
The Allies and the churches: could the Jews have been saved?	296
Willing executioners?	298
Israel, the Palestinians, and the Holocaust	300
Is the Jewish Holocaust “uniquely unique”?	301
Further study	303
Notes	305
7 Cambodia and the Khmer Rouge	334
Origins of the Khmer Rouge	334
War and revolution, 1970–1975	337
A genocidal ideology	339
Hatred of “enemies of the people”	339
Xenophobia and messianic nationalism	339
Peasantism, anti-urbanism, primitivism	340
Purity, discipline, militarism	340
A policy of “urbicide,” 1975	341
“Base people” vs. “new people”	342
Cambodia's Holocaust, 1975–1979	343
Mass executions	347
Genocide against Buddhists and ethnic minorities	349
Aftermath: politics and the quest for justice	352
Further study	355
Notes	356
8 Bosnia and Kosovo	374
Origins and onset	374
Gendercide and genocide in Bosnia	379
The international dimension	382

Kosovo, 1998–1999	385
Aftermaths	387
Further study	392
Notes	392
9 Genocide in Africa's Great Lakes region	408
The African Great Lakes countries in regional context	409
Rwanda, 1994: horror and shame	411
Background to genocide	412
Genocidal frenzy	415
Congo and Africa's "first world war"	424
1996–1997: The "genocide of the camps"	424
The Second Congo War	427
The Burundian imbroglio	429
Great Lakes aftermaths	433
Further study	437
Rwanda	437
Congo	438
Burundi	438
Notes	439
PART 3 SOCIAL SCIENCE PERSPECTIVES	459
10 Psychological perspectives	461
Narcissism, greed, fear, humiliation	461
Narcissism	462
Greed	465
Fear	468
Humiliation	472
The psychology of perpetrators	475
The Milgram experiments	476
The Stanford prison experiments	478
The psychology of rescuers	481
Rescuers and resisters of the Holocaust	484
Further study	491
Notes	492
11 The sociology and anthropology of genocide	501
Introduction	501
Sociological perspectives	502
The sociology of modernity	502
Ethnicity and ethnic conflict	506
Ethnic conflict and violence "specialists"	508
"Middleman minorities"	509
Anthropological perspectives	514
Forensic anthropology	519

Further study	522
Notes	523
12 Political science and international relations	530
Empirical investigations	530
The changing face of war	535
Democracy, war, and genocide/democide	539
Norms and prohibition regimes	542
Further study	547
Notes	548
13 Gendering genocide	552
Gendercide vs. root-and-branch genocide	553
Women as genocidal targets	558
Gendercidal institutions	561
Genocidal men, genocidal women	566
A note on gendered propaganda	572
Further study	576
Notes	577
PART 4 THE FUTURE OF GENOCIDE	585
14 Memory, forgetting, and denial	587
Contested memories	588
Germany	588
Japan	593
Argentina	596
Forgetting	600
Genocide denial: motives and strategies	600
Denial and free speech	603
Further study	606
Notes	607
15 Justice, truth, and redress	613
Leipzig, Constantinople, Nuremberg, Tokyo	614
The international criminal tribunals: Yugoslavia and Rwanda	621
Juridical contributions	623
National trials	626
The "mixed tribunals": Cambodia and Sierra Leone	628
Another kind of justice: Rwanda's gacaca experiment	629
The Pinochet case	631
The International Criminal Court (ICC)	633
International citizens' tribunals	635
Truth and reconciliation	636
The challenge of redress	642
The role of apology	644

Further study	645
Notes	646
16 Strategies of intervention and prevention	655
Warning signs	656
Humanitarian intervention	664
Sanctions	665
The United Nations	666
When is military intervention justified?	667
A standing "peace army"?	674
Ideologies and individuals	675
The role of the honest witness	676
Ideologies, religious and secular	678
Personal responsibility	681
Conclusion	683
Further study	684
Notes	685
Index	693