

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Introduction	1
	Notes	5
2	What is a Constitutional Monarchy?	7
2.1	Types of Monarchy	7
2.2	Monarchy in the Age of Mass Democracy	9
2.2.1	Harmony with Democracy	9
2.2.2	The Lineage of Anti-Monarchy	10
2.2.3	The Age of "Republican Crisis"	11
2.3	The Ideal of Modern Monarchy	12
2.3.1	Bagehot's the English Constitution	12
2.3.2	Yukichi Fukuzawa's "the Theory of the Imperial Household"	15
2.3.3	Shinzo Koizumi and King George the Fifth	17
2.3.4	The "Motherland" of Constitutional Monarchy—Britain	18
	Notes	20
3	The Formation of the British Constitutional Monarchy	23
3.1	Parliamentary Monarchy of Great Britain	23
3.1.1	The Last Surviving King?	23
3.1.2	The Beginning of the Council of Wise Men	24
3.1.3	The Appearance of the "King Across the Channel"	25
3.1.4	Magna Carta and the Formation of the "Parliament"	27
3.1.5	A Particular Institution Only in England?	28
3.2	Why Did the British Expel an Absolute Monarch?	30
3.2.1	Parliamentary Politics of England in the Tudor Age	30
3.2.2	The Beheaded King—The Aftermath of the Civil War	31

3.2.3	The Expelled King—The Glorious Revolution and the Establishment of Parliamentary Sovereignty	33
3.2.4	The Emergence of the Cabinet System	34
3.2.5	The Golden Age of Aristocratic Politics	35
	Notes	37
4	The Completion of the British Constitutional Monarchy	39
4.1	The Age of King George V	39
4.1.1	“The New Century Has Opened Rather Inauspiciously”	39
4.1.2	The Struggle Over the Parliament Act	40
4.1.3	George V—The King Learned from Bagehot	42
4.1.4	The War of the Cousins and the Twilight of the Aristocrats	43
4.1.5	“I Wonder What She Would Have Thought”	45
4.1.6	The National Government of 1931	46
4.1.7	The Ties of the Empire	47
4.2	The Age of Queen Elizabeth II	48
4.2.1	The Prince Charming and His Abdication	48
4.2.2	Elizabeth II and the Decline of Royal Prerogative?	49
4.2.3	The Queen of the Commonwealth	51
4.2.4	The Abolition of Apartheid and the Influence of the Queen	52
4.2.5	The Lessons from the “Diana Incident”	53
4.2.6	The Lineage of the British Constitutional Monarchy	54
	Notes	55
5	The Modern British Royal Family	59
5.1	British Monarch as Head of State	59
5.1.1	Can Monarchy Survive in the Twenty-First Century?	59
5.1.2	The Current Royal Prerogative	61
5.1.3	Not Merely a Formal Meeting—Relationship with Prime Ministers	62
5.1.4	The Fount of Honour and Faith	63
5.2	British Monarch as Head of the Nation	64
5.2.1	What is a Head of the Nation?	64
5.2.2	Royal Duties of the Queen and Her Consort	66
5.2.3	The Transparency of Royal Expenses	67
5.2.4	The Succession to the Crown Act of 2013	69
5.2.5	The Uniqueness of Australia	70
5.2.6	As a Symbol of Modern British Democracy	72
	Notes	73

6 The Nordic Royal Families—The Leading-Edge of Modern Monarchy	75
6.1 “Differ in No Essentials from Subjects”	75
6.1.1 The Sturdy and Practical Majesties	75
6.1.2 From the Kalmar Union to Their Respective Histories	76
6.2 Past and Present of Monarchy in Denmark	78
6.2.1 The Transition of the Danish Monarchy—From Absolute Monarchy to Constitutional Monarchy	78
6.2.2 The Realization of Women’s Suffrage and the Beginning of the Multi-party System	80
6.2.3 The Presence of the King During World War II	80
6.2.4 The Birth of the “Queen”—The Right of Women to Succeed to the Throne	82
6.2.5 The Queen’s Royal Prerogative	83
6.3 Past and Present of Monarchy in Norway	85
6.3.1 The Independence of the “New Kingdom” of Norway	85
6.3.2 The Old King as a “Symbol of Resistance”	86
6.3.3 The Royal Prerogative of the King of Norway	87
6.4 Past and Present of Monarchy in Sweden	88
6.4.1 From Absolute Monarchy to Constitutional Monarchy—Swedish Struggle	88
6.4.2 The Path to a Symbolic Monarchy	90
6.4.3 What Is the Role of a Symbolic Monarch?	91
6.4.4 Pioneers of Gender Equality	92
6.4.5 “I Have Four Million Bodyguards!”	93
Notes	93
7 The Royal Household of the Benelux Countries—An Example of Abdication During Lifetime	95
7.1 Powerful Constitutional Monarchs in the Modern Age	95
7.1.1 A “Scolding” by the King	95
7.1.2 The Historical Background of the Benelux Countries	96
7.2 Past and Present of Monarchy in the Netherlands	99
7.2.1 The Formation of Constitutional Monarchy and Appearance of the “Queen”	99
7.2.2 Unity of the Queen and the People—Memories of World War II	101
7.2.3 Three Queens—The Normalization of Abdication During One’s Lifetime?	102
7.2.4 The Royal Prerogative of the King of the Netherlands	104

7.3	Past and Present of Monarchy in Luxembourg	106
7.3.1	The Beginning of Abdication—The Tragedy of Marie Adelaide	106
7.3.2	The Grand Duchess and World War II—Charlotte's Struggle	107
7.3.3	Constitutional Monarchy of a Small-Size Great Power	108
7.4	Past and Present of Monarchy in Belgium	109
7.4.1	Monarchy Based on Popular Sovereignty	109
7.4.2	"Belgium Is a Country, not a Road!"	111
7.4.3	World War II and the "King's Problem"	112
7.4.4	The Role of Monarchy in Consensus Politics	114
7.4.5	"Abdication During Lifetime" in the Twenty-First Century	115
	Notes	116
8	The Future of Monarchy in Asia	119
8.1	Monarchies on Trial	119
8.1.1	The King's Dilemma?	119
8.1.2	Remaining Monarchies in Asia	120
8.1.3	The Tragedy of the Kingdom of Nepal	121
8.2	Monarchies in Southeast Asia	122
8.2.1	The Lineage of the Constitutional Monarchy in Thailand	122
8.2.2	The Last Teachings of King Bhumibol—The Future of Thai Monarchy	124
8.2.3	The Last Absolute Monarch in Southeast Asia?—The Future of Brunei's Monarchy	127
8.3	Monarchies in West Asia	130
8.3.1	"The Dynastic Monarchy" of Gulf Oil-Producing Countries	130
8.3.2	The Fragility of "Dynastic Monarchy"	132
8.3.3	The Monarchy of the Twenty-First Century in Asia	134
	Notes	134
9	Conclusion: Can the Japanese Maintain the Symbolic Emperor System?	137
9.1	Symbolic Emperor System Under Emperor Akihito	137
9.1.1	The Impact of the Emperor's "Words" (Okotoba)	137
9.1.2	The Responsibilities of the Symbolic Emperor	138
9.1.3	The Formation of the Symbolic Emperor System	139
9.1.4	"Heisei-Style" Official Duties—Visiting Disaster Victims and War Memorial Trips	140
9.1.5	The Meaning of "Imperial Diplomacy"	142

9.2	The Fragile Future of the Japanese Imperial Household	144
9.2.1	An “Open Imperial Family”?—The Need for Further Publicity	144
9.2.2	Where are the Female Imperial Members Going? Is it Appropriate to Descend to Subject Status?	146
9.2.3	Why Can’t There be an “Empress”?	148
9.2.4	What is the Symbolic Emperor System in the Twenty-First Century?	150
Notes		152
References		155